MotherToBaby Partners With Film Company; Experts To Provide Info To ‘40 Weeks’ Audiences

Brentwood, TN – MotherToBaby and Big Belli LLC, the production company behind the latest pregnancy-focused documentary, “40 Weeks The Movie,” have partnered to provide the women who view the film as well as visit BigBelli.com with expert information regarding exposures during pregnancy and breastfeeding.

The film, created by Christopher Henze’s team of seasoned and award winning talent, including executive producer Kurt Engfehr (“Bowling for Columbine”, “Fahrenheit 9/11”, “Fat, Sick, and Nearly Dead”), casting director Lisa Singer (“The Bachelorette”, “Queer Eye”), and editor April Merl (“2012: A Time for change,” “The Yes Men Fix the World”), follows the week-to-week journeys of parents-to-be.

The film is being shown theatrically throughout the United States. At some screenings, including the April 15th screening in South Hadley, MA, MotherToBaby will be providing audience members with educational materials about medications and more during pregnancy and breastfeeding. In some instances, MotherToBaby experts will also be on hand to answer audience’s questions. To find a screening near you, click here.

The grassroots effort and popularity the film company has generated for the film so far has resulted in creating a web-based extension of filmed information to empower, educate and create a sense of community for expectant moms. Over the next few months, several MotherToBaby experts will be featured in www.Bigbelli.com’s informative articles to help provide insight into topics such as marijuana during pregnancy, as well as diseases like Crohn’s Disease and post-partum depression.
