

Are You Pregnant and You Received the Pertussis Vaccine?

MotherToBaby
Pregnancy Studies
Pertussis Vaccine in Pregnancy Project

If you volunteer for MotherToBaby's Pertussis Vaccine in Pregnancy Project, you'll be contributing valuable information that may help future moms!

The purpose of the study is to follow pregnant women who have received the pertussis vaccine at any time during their pregnancy. Through phone interviews, researchers will document medications and other exposures you may have during pregnancy and collect information on the outcome of your pregnancy, including growth and development of your child.

Taking part in the study would NOT require you to change anything about your normal routine. At any time, you can ask our experts the questions you might have about exposures during pregnancy. At the same time, you'll be contributing important information about vaccines during pregnancy.

Volunteer today!

By participating in the Pertussis Vaccine Study, you will get access to our team of experts supporting you throughout your pregnancy, offering the latest evidence-based information about vaccines and other exposures during pregnancy to help keep you informed during your pregnancy and after delivery.

There are two simple ways to volunteer...

1. Fill out our secure online referral form on PregnancyStudies.org or scan below with your smartphone.
2. Call our toll-free number: 877-311-8972.

MotherToBaby Pregnancy Studies are conducted by the Organization of Teratology Information Specialists (OTIS) and are coordinated at the University of California, San Diego, CA.

To Volunteer:
Visit PregnancyStudies.org,
Call 877-311-8972 or Scan:

MotherToBaby
Medications & More During Pregnancy & Breastfeeding
Ask The Experts